The N. Y. INDEPENDENT says:

"The person of the first chapter compels the personal of the second, and so on until the volume is finished and pronounced unequalled of its class."

THE STATE JOURNAL says:

"The author of this book is understood to be a young man who has given all the vivacity to this book which distinguishes his other works, and it cannot prove other than a very popular as well as excellent book for Boys, kindling in them a bold ambition to win a name and fame by the cultivation of their intellectual and moral capabilities, and by firm adherence to justice and truth."
